

VOGUE

September 18, 2015

10 Stunning Hotel Fireplaces to Cozy Up To This Fall

Having a working fireplace in an urban dwelling is a luxury, and even if you're lucky enough to reside in an old brownstone with a chimney or a penthouse equipped with a modern mantle of flames turned on by remote, there's something transporting and relaxing about getting away to a hotel with an exceptionally beautiful fireplace. Whether it's the classic dark room off the bar at The Carlyle in Manhattan or a contemporary lounge area at London's Hoxton, these are the rooms that beckon you to sit, stay, relax, have a drink, or escape for a moment and pretend that you actually live there. These are the 10 hotel fireplaces in the world's busiest cities offering the warmest welcomes.

The Ludlow

Tucked away on New York's Lower East Side, The Ludlow offers an oasis from the wild downtown club and bar scene of the area. The lobby bar has two cushy sofas in front of a large wood-burning fireplace—a perfectly sleek spot to hide away and enjoy a specialty cocktail, like the warming Chai Matsuda, without any fuss.